compliance with the optimum technical and economic scenario indicated by the study performed by the Institute of Energy Studies and Designs (“ISPE”), namely the scenario in which SNN purchases uranium octoxide from the market which is processed at Feldioara facility, as a subsidiary of CNU in order to obtain uranium dioxide to be used in the manufacturing of the nuclear fuel by FCN Pitesti.

The strategy is adopted based on the necessity to ensure the security of raw material supply necessary for the operation of the Cernovoda nuclear units, to reduce the risks related to the dependency on one qualified uranium dioxide supplier as well as due to the necessity to adopt certain strategic measures necessary to maintain an integrated nuclear fuel supply chain in Romania.

In order to implement the optimum scenario identified by the ISPE study, SNN considers a progressive approach, namely, until the end of 2018 to diversify the supply sources by splitting the necessary UO₂ between the two supply options (dioxide and processed octoxide). During the transition period to the exclusive uranium octoxide supply in the year 2020, SNN aims at establishing a contractual relationship with CNU for the qualification of uranium octoxide producers, the processing of the raw material and the storage of the inventory as well as organizing a procurement procedure by concluding a framework agreement with its two qualified suppliers (CNU and CAMECO) to ensure the necessary quantity of uranium dioxide for a transition period of 36 months, following that the deliveries be performed based on purchase orders issued by SNN.
